1. "The new military airfield at Solotvina is three by two kilometers in area. It has two North-South runways 2500 meters long [see note] and 60 meters wide. The runways are 250 meters apart [see note].
2. "Not far from the airfield is a hill (called 'Magura') in [on?] which are 12 hangers spaced at 100 meter intervals. From each hanger a concrete strip extends to the runways [see Enclosure A].
3. "The area of the airfield is grass surface, except for runways and concrete connecting strips.
4. "At the western end of the airport are two iron towers.
5. "The entire airfield is encircled by barbed wire fencing, to prevent escapes.
6. "Approximately 1500 prisoners of war and 300 Soviets were employed in the construction of the airport."

[Note: There is a discrepancy of 500 meters between runway lengths given in the text and on the sketch-map. There is also a discrepancy, of 50 meters, in distance between runways given in the text and on the sketch-map. Contact is unable to ascertain which figures are correct.]
